

Hi All at Gulf4Good

How does one say 'Thank You' for your incredible donation... and for the great day we all had at the building site. Thank you for the trees – they WILL bear fruit – lots of it.

The kids had a ball – they were totally pooped on the way home – the domino effect in the car was great fun to watch.

I am so glad you spent time with them – they are lovely, happy, funny children and they make everyone who comes in contact with them smile. It was also good that you could meet our new builder and the people around us, the villagers, the monks, other volunteers ... a small cross-section of the community. They are a wonderful bunch of people – simple, courteous, honest, hard-working, gentle and extremely helpful. The children can't wait to move and we can't wait to move them.

The strangest thing happened today – and it's amazing how the universe works. We were given notice by the owner of the little house where the children now live in Phnom Penh. We have to leave by end June. I spoke to the builder, and he said he will probably be able to manage completing the house by then. So, this is a case of before one door closed another door opened!

I will be updating you – weekly – on the building progress with photos and commentary. You will always know exactly how the building is going.

Do we sometimes get down-hearted when we realise the massive amount of work to be done in this country? Sure, who wouldn't. There are so many in need and we can help so few.... But at least we can help a few and they in turn will help more – an avalanche starts with one snowflake.

Thank you all so very much and please keep in contact.

Best regards,
Jane
